

Sheepskin Seat Cover Cleaning Instructions

We recommend a quick brush with a wired comb or vacuum from time to time for general upkeep. This will keep them nice and fluffy for years to come. Sheepskin seat covers are fully washable if needed.

Seat covers can be dry cleaned, hand washed or spot cleaned.

Dry cleaners that accept fur coats usually clean sheepskin seat covers too. Remove the hooks before you drop them off. This is the most expensive option.

If you want to hand wash them, remove the hooks, wash with a baby shampoo or a sheepskin shampoo (not Woolite or any other detergent), cold or lukewarm water and do not use the dryer. Air dry the seat covers. Do not expose to direct sunlight while the covers are drying, it can fade the colors. The covers will take 2-3 days to dry completely. Brush them out with a curry comb (doggie brush) once they are dry and re-install them on your seats.

Hand washing is usually a safe method to clean seat covers, if the covers are older and/or brittle spot cleaning only is recommended.

Or they can be cleaned with a foam spray-on carpet/upholstery cleaner, spray on, work it into the seat cover (no need to remove the seat covers from the seats) let it dry and vacuum out. Woolite and other companies offer this kind of cleaner. It can be purchased at a drug store or grocery store. Check for color fastness if you have black or dark colored seat covers.

Washing the seat covers will void the warranty, since we have no control over how you wash them.
